

Maryellen Gets Her Wings

Maryellen walked to Heaven's Gate middle school in New York City every day with her grandma Breeza and Stretch her St. Bernard.

Maryellen, beginning seventh grade, enjoyed her daily walk with grandma, who shared stories about dogs' spiritual powers.

You see, grandma Breeza knew that one day Maryellen would have a special job helping people around the world. In fact, grandma was already talking to the angels in heaven because they needed her to lead an important assignment from heaven.

Momma Breeza kindly helped Maryellen adopt Stretch from a local rescue. See Momma

Breeza told Maryellen that dogs are a gift from heaven and if you listen to their heart and mind, they speak to you and together you can change the world.

While Maryellen never quite understood that message, she loved Stretch and she loved her grandma. The three individuals would soon collaborate to make a significant impact on the world.

One perfectly normal day, Momma Breeza became unwell and the angels gently carried her up to heaven. Knowing her time was short, Momma prepared Maryellen as best she could. Maryellen accepted the sad news but did not fully understand how her life would change forever.

Grandmas job in heaven was to lead an organization of dog angels on earth so people would become nicer and friendlier to one another. Momma Breeza identified a global need.
